

Summary of Professor Alena Kimakova's Comment on Federal Budget 2010

The government's emphasis on the natural resource sector can have negative macroeconomic implications for the export competitiveness of manufacturing and service industries due to a potential real exchange rate appreciation. This can also jeopardize the strategy of attracting new foreign investment through corporate tax cuts.