

Problématique

Journal of Political Studies

Revue d'études politiques

An annual publication of York Political Science
Graduate Students

Submissions For Volume IV

Academic papers should be submitted to the mailing address by January 14th, 1994. Submissions may be in either English or French and should not exceed 8,000 words. Reviews and critiques should be limited to 2000 words. As Problématique is a refereed journal, four copies of each manuscript are required. Social Science footnoting style is requested.

Contributions reflect the opinions of the authors rather than those of the editorial board or collective or others associated with the journal.

Mailing Address:

Problématique

c/o the Department of Political Science

York University

4700 Keele St.,

North York, Ontario

M3J 1P3

Copyright © 1993 by Problématique

ISSN No. 118-7488

Contents

The Politics of Meaning in Punk Rock	David Pottie	1
From Radical Philosophy to Conservative Politics: Richard Rorty on Liberal Democracy	Mike Murphy	22
Foucault, Genealogy, History	Imre Szeman	49
Terminator Three: The Revenge of the Subject	Davina Bhandar	74
The (seemingly) Inevitable Theory of the Joke in Film Criticism: or the Gain, the Laughter, the +/-, the Risible Visible, and the Loss of any Salvaging Project of Truth or Demystification in (My) Life Today	Michael Ma	93
Restructuring Toronto: Post-Modern Culture and the Creation of the Space Economy of Post-Fordism	Graham Todd	114

problématique

Journal of Political Studies

Revue d'études politiques

No. 3, Fall 1993

Editors' Note

As with previous issues, Volume III of Problématique would not have been possible without the support of a number of individuals and organizations. We would like to thank our colleagues and friends in the Political Science Department at York University who have generously offered their time and suggestions. We are most grateful for the financial support provided to the journal by the Academic Initiatives Committee of the Political Science Department, and by the Graduate Programme in Political Science and its Director Asher Horowitz. We also wish to extend our thanks to Michael Zmolek, the journal's type-setter. As well, we wish to acknowledge the following graduate students who assisted us in the production of this issue: Davina Bhandar, Marlea Clarke, Catherine Kellogg, James Lawson, Máire O'Brien, Liz Philipose, David Pottie, and Randall Terada.

The articles published in this volume reflect a wide range of political issues and debates that can be found within the current field of political science. Not only do our contributors come from different theoretical and disciplinary perspectives, they also come from a wide spatial locale: Michael Ma has studied Theory and Criticism at the University of Western Ontario; Mike Murphy studies Political Science at McGill University; Imre Szeman is studying Comparative Literature at Duke University; and Davina Bhandar, David Pottie and Graham Todd are in the Graduate Programme in Political Science at York University.

The review process for Problématique is undertaken by members of its editorial collective. Papers are submitted and then anonymously reviewed. Publishable papers are selected on the basis of originality, currency and readiness for publication. In order to ensure that the papers may speak for themselves, the copy-editing task is limited to matters of stylistic consistency.

We encourage readers to submit critiques of previously published articles, and will offer the article authors the opportunity for response. Additionally, all graduate students are invited to participate in future volumes of Problématique through article and book review submissions, or by participating in the collective.

Lois Harder and Robert Marshall
Editors
September, 1993