Businesses finding route to building global customer base through those who language and understand the culture

A decade ago, Africa wasn't much on the map for Phoenix Geophysics Ltd., a company that makes geophysical instruments used in research and mining exploration.

Today, it's one of the Toronto-based manufacturer's fastest-growing markets. A good part of that success comes from one employee: Entheon-born geophysicist Testakios Haile, who is promoting sales in the region.

Mr. Haile is not only familiar with the cultures around the Horn of Africa and the

TIEDI STUDY: Caregivers most educated among immigrant groups

March 11, 2011

TORONTO ... "The educational level of LCP (Low-Income Caregiver Program) principal applicants has increased steadily over the years, and is now very high," said a recent study.

In 2006, 50 per cent of caregivers who achieved permanent resident status had a bachelor's degree or higher (a much higher proportion than for other immigration categories), the same study said.

This was one of the key findings of the study, "Profile of Low-Income Caregiver Immigrants to Canada, 1993-2009," authored by Philip Kelly, Sheila Park, Osmay de Leon, Jeff Frost.

The study was released in March 2011 by the Toronto Immigrant Employment Data Initiative (TIEDI), a York University-based research initiative that seeks to assist organizations who make decisions on the better integration of immigrants into Toronto's labour force.

Among the study's other key findings are:

- There have been significant increases in arrivals through the Low-Income Caregiver Program (LCP) in the late 2000s, and an increasing number of skilled applicants arriving to join their parents.
- Data on only into the LCP suggests that high levels of immigration in the LCP category will continue in the coming years.
- Although a majority of principal applicants are aged between 20-40, an increasing minority are aged over 40. In recent years, LCP principal applicants are also more likely to be married than in the past.
- The overwhelming majority of LCP principal applicants are women, and are from the Philippines, although a

What is TIEDI- Public Outreach Project (POGI- Phase 2)?

PURPOSE: To provide organizations with FREE access to statistical data and analysis on various aspects of immigrant labour market integration. The goal is to help organizations access the quantitative data they need in order to: identify priorities, develop programs and services, compose proposals and reports, and carrying out advocacy and public education endeavors.

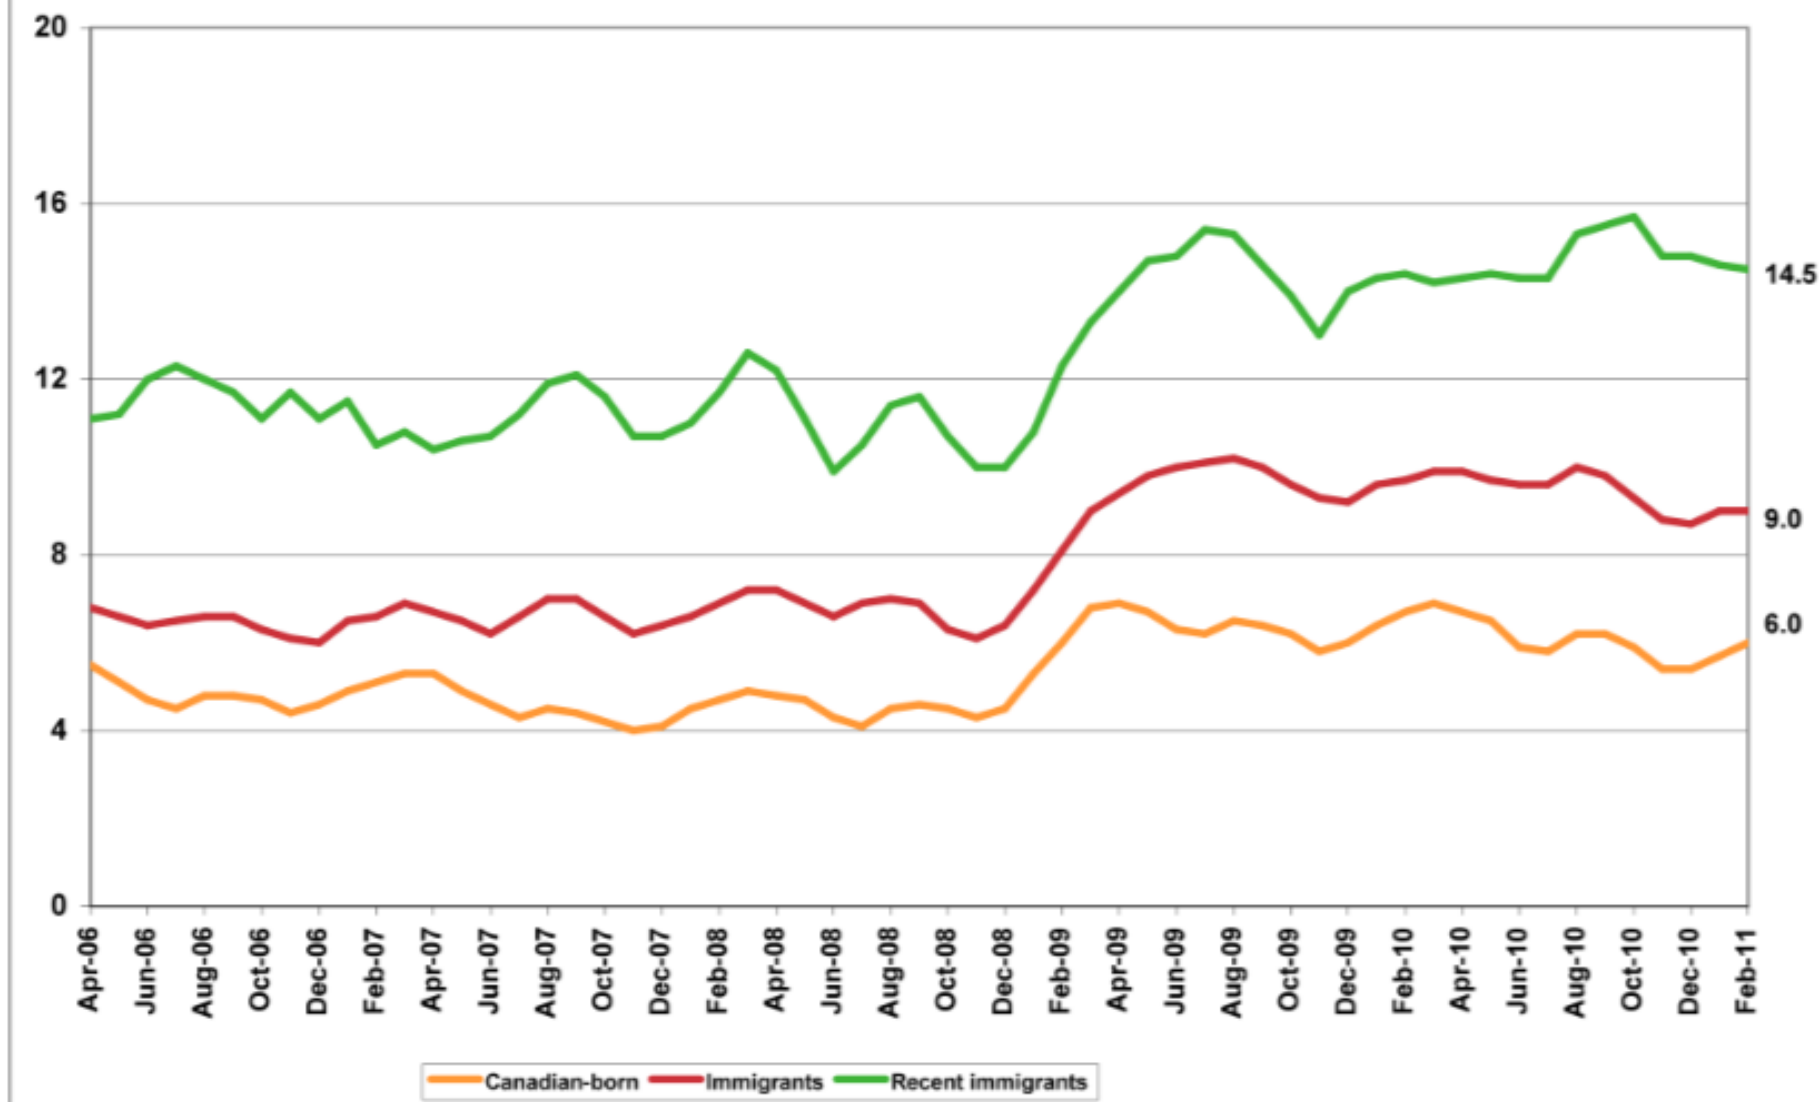

1) What are policy and practical implications of TIEDI's research findings? Develop and Disseminate policy and practice recommendations

2) How can this model be applied to other immigrant cities? (e.g. Vancouver, Montreal, etc)

How will Public Outreach be done?

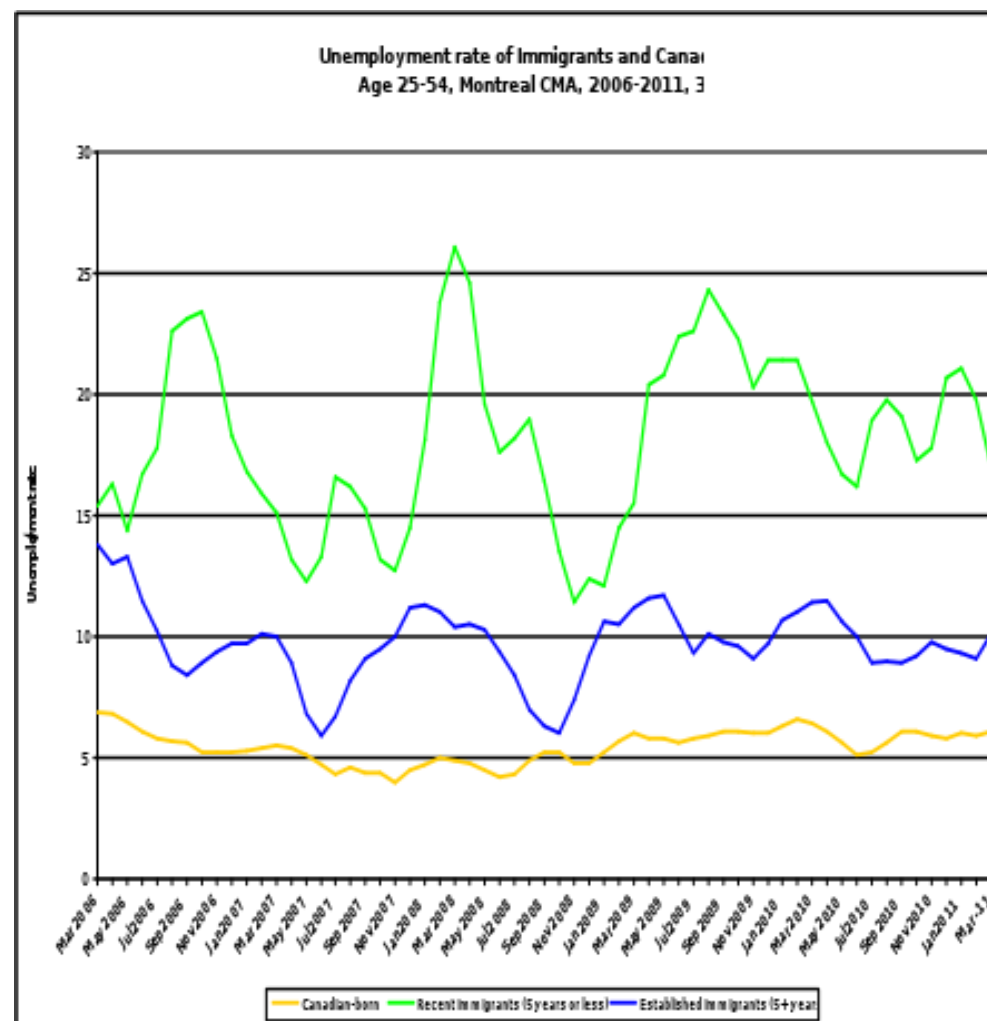

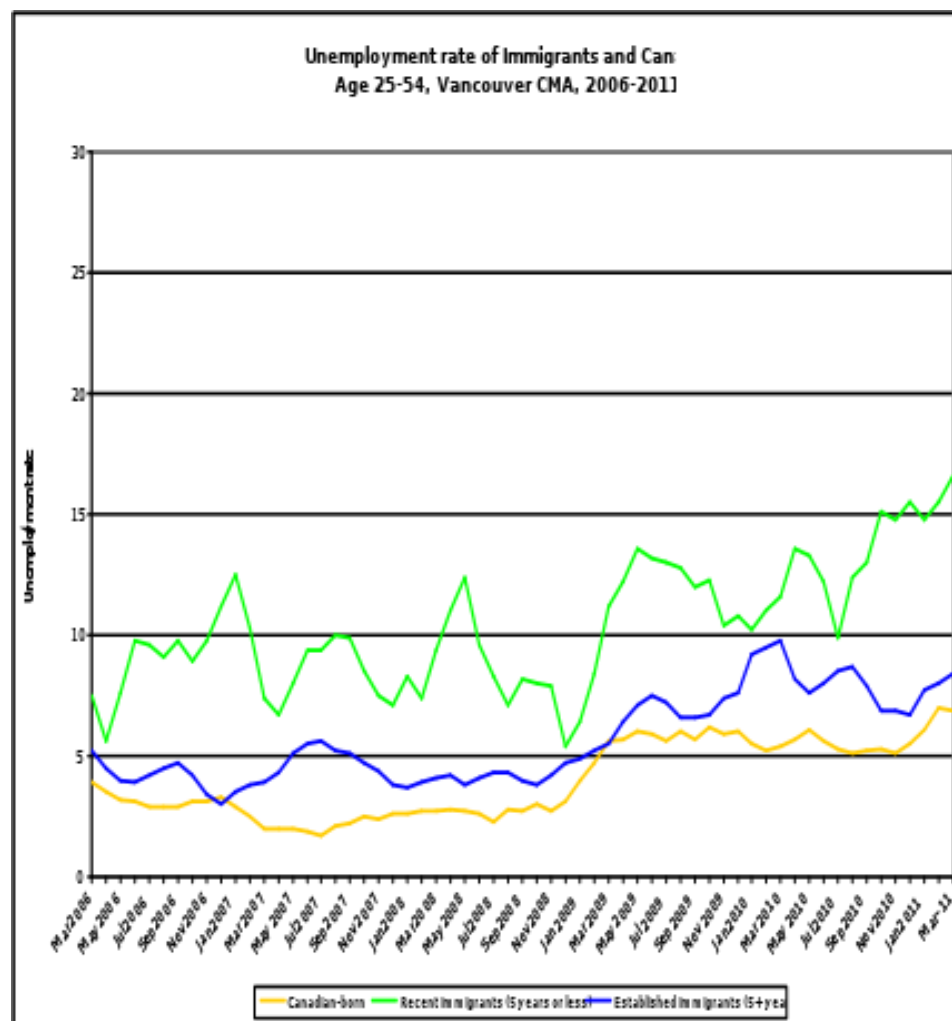

1. Follow-up exchange forums/ workshops
2. Publish Policy briefs
3. Train student knowledge brokers for public outreach
4. Active use of social media
