

Biographies of Heads of Delegation and Presenters (In Alphabetic Order)

Mr. Peter Bates, Deputy Director, International Crime and Terrorism

Peter G. Bates obtained his B.A. in History and Political Science from the University of Toronto in 1985. Mr. Bates joined the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade in 1989 and has served at the Canadian Embassies in Moscow, 1991-1994, Washington, D.C., 1996-2000, and Tehran, 2000-2002. From 1994 to 1996, he was the Canadian Representative to NATO's High Level Task Force (HLTF) and he served as Deputy Head of the Canadian Delegation to the 1995 CFE Treaty Review Conference. Since returning to Ottawa in September 2002, he has served as Deputy Director - Terrorism in the International Crime and Terrorism Division of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade.

Dr. Akiko Fukushima, National Institute for Research Advancement

Akiko Fukushima is currently Director of Policy Studies and Senior Fellow at the National Institute for Research Advancement (NIRA) in Japan. She was Adjunct Professor of Keio University from 2000 to 2002 and a Visiting Professor of Center on International Relations, University of British Columbia, Canada for 2002 and 2003. She has been appointed to numerous committees of the Japanese government including the Committee on International Economy of the Cabinet Office since 1998, the Defense Agency's Council on Defense Facilities since 2000 and the Defense Agency's Study Group on Defense Diplomacy since 2001. Dr. Fukushima received her M.A. in international economics and international relations from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) at Johns Hopkins University in the United States in 1994, and her Ph.D in international public policy from Osaka University, Japan in 1997.

Dr. Toshiya Hoshino, Osaka University

Toshiya Hoshino is Associate Professor of International Security Studies at Osaka University. Prof. Hoshino graduated from Sophia University and obtained his M.A. in international relations in 1986 from the University of Tokyo. He was a political analyst at the Japanese Embassy in Washington, D.C., from 1988 to 1991 and a visiting fellow at the Woodrow Wilson School of Princeton University from 1992 to 1993. He had served as a research fellow (and later a senior research fellow) at the Japan Institute of International Affairs since 1991 until he took up his current position in 1998. Prof. Hoshino's recent publications include "Pursuing Informal Human Security: A Track II Status Report" in Asia's Emerging Security (2000), "Japan-U.S. alliance and multilateral security in Asia" (in Japanese), "On Legality and Legitimacy of Peace Enforcement" (in Japanese) in Kokusai-ho Gaiko Zasshi (Journal of International Law and Diplomacy, 2002).

Dr. Brian Job, Director, Center of International Relations, Liu Institute, University of British Columbia

Brian Job is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Centre of International Relations at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the Sing-Tao School of Journalism, UBC. He is currently engaged in research on the evolving security order of the Asia Pacific region in the post-Cold War era, on the promises and problems for multilateral approaches to security at the regional level, on the settlement of regional conflict, and on Canadian security and defence policy. Professor Job was one of the founders and Co-Directors of the Canadian Consortium on Asia Pacific Security. In addition to holding the positions of Co-Chair of the Canadian member committee of CSCAP (Council on Security Cooperation in Asia Pacific) and Co-Chair of the CSCAP North Pacific Working Group (1996-2002), Professor Job has assumed the position, as of June 2002, of Co-Chair of CSCAP.

Mr. Stéphane Jobin, Political Counsellor, Canadian Embassy, Tokyo

Stéphane Jobin studied law at University of Ottawa. He joined the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade in 1991 after working as a private lawyer in Montréal. His first positions in DFAIT were in the Trade Law Division and the Trade Dispute Settlement Division. Between 1993 and 1998, he studied Japanese and joined the Canadian Embassy in Tokyo, working as public affairs officer. From 1998 to 2002 he was Deputy Director in DFAIT's Policy Planning Division, covering the political and security agenda of the G8. He is now back in Tokyo as the Head of the Political Section of the Canadian Embassy.

Dr. Pierre Martin, Université de Montréal

Pierre Martin (Ph.D., Northwestern, 1991) is Associate Professor of Political Science at the Université de Montréal. He is director of the Université de Montréal/McGill University Research Group in International Security, and an associate member of the Centre canadien d'études allemandes et européennes. In 1999-2000 he was the William Lyon Mackenzie King Visiting Associate Professor of Canadian Studies at Harvard University, as well as a U.S.-Canada Fulbright Fellow. His research and teaching center on international political economy, international relations and public opinion analysis. His articles have appeared notably in Comparative Politics, the Canadian Journal of Political Science, International Journal, Études internationales and the British Journal of Political Science. He is the co-editor, with Mark Brawley, of Alliance Politics, Kosovo, and NATO's War: Allied Force or Forced Allies? (New York: Palgrave, 2001).

Mr. Robert McDougall, Director, Non-proliferation, Arms Control and Disarmament

Rob McDougall has been Director of DFAIT's Non-Proliferation, Arms Control and Disarmament Division since 1998. Born in Ottawa and raised in Canada and Japan, he is a graduate in history of the University of Victoria. Joining the Department of External Affairs in 1973, he has been posted to Washington, Hong Kong, Beijing, New York, Brussels (NATO) and Tokyo. He has recently been Chairman of the Missile Technology Control Regime (2001-2002), a member of the UN Experts Group on Missiles (2001-2002) and Chairman of the G-8 Non-Proliferation Experts Group (2002).

Dr. David Mendeloff, Carleton University

David Mendeloff is Assistant Professor at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University. He is also faculty associate of the Centre for Security and Defence Studies and the Institute of European and Russian Studies. Dr. Mendeloff teaches courses in Conflict Analysis, Peacebuilding, and U.S. Foreign Security Policy. His area of research is in the causes and prevention of war, historical memory and interstate conflict, identity and conflict, and post-conflict peacebuilding. He is author most recently of "Causes and Consequences of Historical Amnesia: The Annexation of the Baltic States in Russian Popular History and Political Memory," in Historical Injustice and Democratic Transition in Eastern Asia and Northern Europe: Ghosts at the Table of Democracy, eds. Kenneth Christie and Robert Cribb (London: RoutledgeCurzon, 2002). He received his Ph.D. in political science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and his B.A. from the Claremont Colleges in Southern California. He has taught at MIT, Harvard, and Drake University before coming to Carleton in 2001.

Mr. Paul Meyer, Minister, Canadian Embassy, Tokyo

Paul Meyer has been a member of the Canadian Foreign Service since 1975. He was educated at the University of Toronto and graduated with a BA and MA in Political Science. During his diplomatic career, he has had postings in Oslo, Moscow, Brussels (NATO), and Washington. In Ottawa, he has had a variety of assignments, primarily in the field of international security policy. From 1998 to 2001, he served as Director General of the International Security Bureau of DFAIT. Mr. Meyer is currently Minister and Deputy Head of Mission at the Canadian Embassy in Tokyo, Japan.

Dr. Naofumi Miyasaka, National Defence Academy

Naofumi Miyasaka is an Associate Professor of the Department of International Relations of the National Defense Academy in Yokosuka, Japan. He was born in 1963 in Tokyo and graduated from the Department of Law at Keio University and worked at the N.Y.K.(Nippon Yusen Kaisha) Line, a global shipping company. Dr. Miyasaka holds MA in Political Science from Waseda University Graduate School. He had been a research assistant and a lecturer of International Politics at Senshu University in Tokyo until 1999. His areas of concentration include U.S. Foreign policy, foreign military intervention, international and domestic terrorism, arms control and Japanese security policy. His most recent book is International Terrorism(Kokusai Terorizumu Ron) (Tokyo: Ashishobo, 2002), and other articles include “A New Total War“(Tokyo: Toshishuppan, 2002), “Bioterrorism and Japan”(New York: Japan Society, forthcoming). Now Dr. Miyasaka especially focuses on general theory of terrorism and social structure.

Mr. Yasumasa Nagamine, Deputy Director General, North American Affairs Bureau

Yasumasa Nagamine is the Deputy Director-General of the North American Affairs Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He was born in 1954 and received a BA degree in International Studies from Tokyo University. Nagamine received a special diploma in Social Studies from Oxford University. He joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1977, and served as Counsellor of the Cabinet Legislation Bureau of the Prime Minister’s Office, Director of the Second European Affairs Division of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Director of the Legal Affairs Division, Minister of the Embassy of Japan in India, Minister of the Embassy of Japan in the United Kingdom.

Dr. Masashi Nishihara, President, National Defence Academy

Masashi Nishihara has been President of the National Defense Academy, Yokosuka, since April 2000. In 1977-99 he was Professor of International Relations at the same Academy and in 1993-96 he served as Director of the First Research Department of the National Institute for Defense Studies, Tokyo, while concurrently teaching at the Academy. After graduating from the Law Department of Kyoto University in 1962, he received his M.A. and Ph.D. in political science from the University of Michigan. He was associated with Kyoto University’s Center for Southeast Asian Studies in 1970-72, and taught at Kyoto Sangyo University in 1973-77. He was a Visiting Fellow at the Australian National University, Canberra, in 1979, and at the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, in 1981-82. He currently serves on Prime Minister Koizumi's Private Task Force on Foreign Relations. He is the author of many works on Japanese foreign and security policy issues, including East Asian Security and the Trilateral Countries (1985), U.N. Peacekeeping: Japanese and American Perspectives (co-editor, 1995), Vietnam Joins the World (co-editor, 1997), and The Japan-U.S. Alliance: New Challenges for 21st Century (co-editor, 2000). He is also an occasional contributor to The International Herald Tribune.

Dr. Yoshihide Soeya, Keio University

Yoshihide Soeya has been Professor of Political Science and International Relations at the Faculty of Law of Keio University since 1995, which he joined in 1988 as Assistant Professor. He has also been serving as a Faculty Fellow of the Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry since 2001. He graduated from Sophia University, and then majored in World Politics at the Department of Political Science of The University of Michigan, obtaining Ph.D. in 1987. Before joining the Faculty of Law of Keio University, he served as Academic Assistant at the Institute of International Relations of Sophia University, and as Researcher at the Research Institute for Peace and Security (RIPS) in Tokyo. At RIPS, he now serves on the board of directors as well as a Research Associate, and regularly contributes to its annual publication, Asian Security. Dr. Soeya's areas of interest are politics and security in the Asia-Pacific and Japan's external relations, and he has chaired and participated in numerous multinational projects including those on Myanmar and ASEAN, US-Japan-Korea security relations, post-Cold War Asia-Pacific security environment, confidence-building measures in Asia, and building a U.S.-Japan security community. He was also a member of the Prime Minister's Commission on "Japan's Goals in the 21st Century," under the late Prime Minister Keizo Obuchi.