

Graduate Program in Sociology Comprehensive Exam Reading List

Migration Studies

April 25, 2023

Description:

Migration, arguably, is at the center of sociology. Indeed, the discipline marks its beginnings (via Durkheim, for instance) with attention to rural-urban migration that attended processes of industrialization and urbanization and the advent of modernity – in Europe and beyond. This reading list, however, is focused on international migration, particularly in the contemporary era. Even with this historical bracketing, the relevant scholarship is vast and covers multiple aspects of migration. These include, for instance, the reorganization of labor in the global economy; the emergence of a refugee regime in the post-War era; ever-new modalities of state regulation; changing definitions of citizenship; and the socio-cultural dimensions of identity and belonging. With attention to a historical sensibility, this list aims to provide students with the opportunity to be conversant with varied important approaches to studying migration and to gain an appreciation for the complexity of the phenomenon. Several faculty members in the graduate program work on different issues related to migration. To enable students to gain a familiarity with the diversity of research in the program, the list includes some of their work. This list is a living document and will be revised regularly.

Pedagogical objectives:

To prepare students to teach and conduct research in migration studies.

Instructions for students:

This reading list is designed to balance required readings with readings chosen by the student. In total, you should create a reading list that consists of the equivalent of 25 medium-sized books/ 125 articles (5 journal articles or chapters = 1 medium-sized book). 75% of the readings must come from this list; 25% of the readings are at your discretion and should be decided in consultation with your comprehensive exam committee.

For your final list:

- 1) 75% of the readings – i.e., 18.75 medium-sized books (the equivalent of 94 articles) – must come from this list, selected in the following manner:
  - (a) The readings in bold are required for all students. This is the equivalent of 73 articles.
  - (b) In addition, students must select the equivalent at least 21 additional articles from this list. These should be identified by the student in consultation with their comprehensive exam committee. Students may choose individual chapters from any of the books or edited collections on this reading list.

2) 25% of the readings – i.e., 6.25 medium-sized books (or, approximately 31 articles) – are at the discretion of the student and their committee. These additional readings can be selected from the list or be readings not on the list.

The readings on the list are divided into the following categories:

1. Conceptual Approaches
2. Historicizing and Decolonizing Migration Studies
3. Boundaries, Borders, Bordering, and Ordering
4. Citizenship and Non-Citizenship
5. Regulating Migration, Governance, Control
6. Transnationalism
7. Migration, Nation, State
8. Social and Cultural Identities
9. Integration, Assimilation, Incorporation
10. Migration and Labor (including Temporary Migration Policies and Practices)
11. Refugees and Humanitarian Migration
12. Social Reproduction, Gender, Sexuality
13. Migrant Agency, Autonomy of Migration, Migrant Protest and Solidarity

Note: Due to the number of faculty members who contributed to the list, the citation format of entries on this list is not standardized. Students, however, should use a consistent citation format in their work.
