Course Description:

This course will examine various topics related to community psychology, including theories and research, prevention and early intervention, community mental health, the community practitioner as social change agent, and applications of community psychology to various settings and situations. In general, community psychology is concerned with the application of psychological principles to understand and address social issues that affect communities (e.g., schools, neighborhoods, the workplace, the larger society), such as child abuse, homelessness, school violence, racism, crime, mental illness, and substance abuse. An aim of community psychology is to draw upon the resources of communities to develop solutions to resolve or prevent problems.

Community psychology is also concerned with the interrelationship between individuals and the communities in which they are imbedded (e.g., “community as context”) and the role of community development to enrich and strengthen communities to promote the optimal growth and development of its members and their health and well-being and mental health. In these regards, community psychology shares some concepts with clinical and counseling psychology, particularly the humanistic traditions, however, utilizing and applying resources both at the community-level and the individual-level.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. Demonstrate in-depth knowledge of community psychology.
2. Articulate trends in community psychology.
3. Express knowledge of community psychology in written form.

Grading as per Senate Policy

The grading scheme for the course conforms to the 9-point grading system used in undergraduate programs at York (e.g., A+ = 9, A = 8, B+ = 7, C+ = 5, etc.). Assignments and tests* will bear either a letter grade designation or a corresponding number grade (e.g. A+ = 90 to 100, A = 80 to 90, B+ = 75 to 79, etc.)

(For a full description of York grading system see the York University Undergraduate Calendar - <http://calendars.students.yorku.ca/2016-2017/academic-and-financial-information/academic-services/grades-and-grading-schemes>)

Missed Tests or Exams

Students with a documented reason for missing a course test, such as illness, compassionate grounds, etc., which is confirmed by supporting documentation (Attending Physician Statement which can be found at: <http://registrar.yorku.ca/pdf/attending-physicians-statement.pdf>) may request accommodation from the Course Instructor. If this should occur, students must contact the teaching assistant and the course director by email before the test/exam. Further extensions or accommodation will require students to submit a formal petition to the Faculty.

Note: In the event a test is missed due to a religious observance other than formally scheduled exams (December and April examination period), students are responsible for giving not less than 14 days notice.

Please do not schedule any travel plans during the exam period (i.e., April 7 to 24, inclusive).

Only one make-up will be held for each test. Please note that in the event that you write a make-up test, your test grade may not be available before the course drop deadline (e.g., Mar. 10).

Electronic Device Policy

Students are welcome to use electronic devices during class that enhance their performance. However, use of these resources must be appropriate for an academic setting.

Examples of appropriate uses of technology include: audio recordings of lectures, note-taking on laptops or tablets, use of cell phones to calendar tests/assignments or events, or use of devices to complete Google searches for relevant information.

In contrast, the following are examples of inappropriate uses of technology: texting or reading personal texts while in class, sending or reading personal emails, surfing the internet for non-class purposes such as using Facebook or other social media, and reading online information that is not relevant to class material.

Attendance Policy

Students are expected to attend classes on a consistent basis. If a class is missed for any reason, students are advised to refer to the course outline, online lecture notes (Moodle), or to follow up with the teaching assistants or the course instructor in person. Due to time limitations and the large class size, it is not possible for the course instructor to respond to all emails regarding missed information that has already been provided in class.
