this rewarding experience....

“As a senator, I've had a rare opportunity to engage with York's senior administrators about significant issues that affect the whole university such as the development of the new UAP, York's budgetary priorities, the launch of a new faculty, racial tensions on and off campus, and, of course, the university's strategy for handling the pandemic responsibly and equitably. I feel like a more integral member of York than I did before, more appreciative of challenges we face, and more excited about the opportunities we are fostering to enable York to thrive in uncertain times. This has been an eye-opening, and valuable experience for which I am very grateful.” – Dr. Carolyn Steele

“Since I joined York University, I have had numerous opportunities to serve on several departmental, faculty and university committees. All these activities certainly added considerably to my administrative and intellectual experiences. However, my tenure as the Chair of the Faculty Executive Committee and Faculty Council during 2019 and 2020 rewarded me the most. My horizon was broadened, and I came to realize the important academic and administrative roles the members of the Faculty Subcommittees and the Faculty Council play in enriching our academic responsibilities and shaping the policies of our faculty and its future. My belief in the strength and value of the diversity of opinions was confirmed. Let us all join to make LA&PS and York a very special educational institution.” – Dr. Minoo Derayeh
