

HyFlex Times

Summer 2022 Issue Two, June 09 2022

Top Story

HyFlex teaching and learning is a maturing trend in the world of post-secondary education that is rapidly gaining attention. If you are interested in exploring how it might impact the teaching and learning landscape, this eCampus Ontario's report might be of interest.

2021 Foresight Report: The Hybrid Future

Note that at York HyFlex courses are offered simultaneously in BOTH face-to-face and virtual synchronous modes. This article defines the HyFlex delivery mode in much broader terms.

Big Ideas

Are you wondering whether there are any tips and strategies for a successful Hyflex course?

Grand Valley State University shared their tips for teaching HyFlex and dual delivery courses with remote learners that might be useful.

Tips for Teaching HyFlex and Dual Delivery Courses with Remote Learners

Toolbox

HyFlex Learning Community offers educators a space to learn and share their experiences in Hybrid-Flexible course and program design in a connected and community-coordinated way. This site hosts substantial resources on HyFlex teaching and learning.

HyFlex Learning Community

Snapshots from the Trenches

Elise Verdooner and Matthea Marquart from Columbia University's School of Social Work discussed their pilot of Remote Live Participation (RLP) courses, version of HyFlex courses, which entail teaching online and residential students simultaneously.

A Modified Version of HyFlex: Piloting Remote Live Participation at Columbia University's School of Social Work

Contact Us

For information on the HyFlex pilot, please contact Peter Wolf, pilot lead
Email: pwolf@yorku.ca

For pedagogical support, please contact Teaching Commons:
Email: teaching@yorku.ca

For technical support, please contact UIT's technical team:
Email: askit@yorku.ca
