

Syllabus Statements

This document includes statements on different types of academic integrity breaches that can be included on your course syllabus and/or posted onto eClass. Sharing this information with students helps raise awareness about expectations and helps dispel any misunderstandings. These statements can also act as a springboard for discussion throughout the term.

Please feel free to change the content in order to best suit the needs of your course, discipline and students. If you have any suggestions for additional statements, please contact academicintegrity@yorku.ca for assistance with development.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) Apps

According to York's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty, using AI apps such as ChatGPT, GPT-3, DALL-E, among others to complete academic work without your instructor's knowledge or permission, is considered to be a breach of academic honesty. More specifically, using text-generating tools (such as ChatGPT) would be considered to be cheating (Senate Policy, section 2.1.1) and using image-generating tools (such as DALL-E) would be considered to be plagiarism (Senate Policy, section 2.1.3). You may find that certain instructors will allow the use of these tools for certain assessments, yet others will not allow their use. If you're not sure whether using an AI app for your academic work is acceptable, it is recommended that you:

- Carefully review the guidelines for your assessments
- Check for any messages from your instructor on eClass
- Ask your instructor or TA if they are permitting the use of these tools

Additionally, you are encouraged to keep all of your research notes and draft versions of your work. You may be asked to present these if it is suspected that an AI app was used to help complete your work. These drafts can be used to show how this work developed, and to provide evidence that the work is your own.

Group Messaging Tools

Group messaging platforms, such as Discord or WhatsApp, can be helpful tools that connect students and support learning. However, such tools can lead to academic honesty violations when students share or use answers to homework tasks, quizzes, tests, or exams, or when students collaborate on individual assignments. According to York's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty these behaviours may lead to a penalty. Moderators of these groups are required to clearly communicate the group's purpose and to remind students of the expectations for academic honesty. Being a member of such a group is not a breach of academic honesty or any other university policy. However, if you witness academically dishonest behaviour, it is strongly recommended that you leave the group. If you are unsure whether the behaviour is a violation of academic honesty, check with your TA or instructor.

For detailed information about expectations for academic honesty, please refer to York's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty.

Homework Help Sites

According to homework sites (such as Chegg), their services are intended to support students' understanding of course material. Despite this, cheating occurs on tests and exams when students post their test or exam questions to these sites during the assessment in order to obtain answers from one of their experts. Using the answers provided is a breach of academic honesty, according to York's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty. If you're struggling with course material, understanding expectations, or in any other way, reach out to your instructor or TA instead of relying on homework help sites to acquire assessment answers. ### Contract Cheating

Contract cheating occurs when a third party completes a student's work, and the student then submits that work as their own. Third parties can include: freelance academic writers or tutors, online essay writing companies, friends, classmates, or even family members. Contract cheating is considered to be a serious type of academic dishonesty that carries severe penalties. Besides penalties imposed by the university, contracting a third party to complete academic work carries the additional risks of identity theft and blackmail. If you are unsure whether a certain resource is a legitimate source of help, check with your TA or instructor. For authorized resources and sources of help at York, please visit: <https://www.yorku.ca/unit/vpacad/academic-integrity/student-resources/>. As well, for detailed information about expectations for academic honesty, please refer to York's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty.

Unauthorized Collaboration

Unauthorized collaboration occurs when students work together on assessments without their instructor's permission. This can include working together to solve homework problems, comparing their homework, test or exam answers, collaborating to complete assignments, or having someone else write or revise an assignment. Sometimes collaborating on assessments with other students is acceptable, yet at other times, individual effort is required. This can vary by course, instructor, or assessment. Even when it comes to group assignments, individual work may be required at different stages. If you are unsure whether collaborating on assigned work is permitted or the extent of collaboration that is acceptable, review the instructions for that assessment, and/or ask your instructor or TA. Note: even if collaboration on an assessment is permitted, it is never acceptable copy someone else's work or allow them to copy yours.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is defined as misusing another person's published or unpublished work by presenting their ideas, writing or other intellectual property as one's own without proper acknowledgement (Senate Policy on Academic Honesty, section 2.1.3.). There are a number of acts that are considered to be plagiarism, for example:

- copying content word-for-word from a source without proper citation;
- paraphrasing from a source without proper citation; submitting work you have already submitted for another course without the instructor's approval;
- rewording someone else's work which you submit as your own;
- having a third party complete work in whole then submitting it as one's own (also known as contract cheating).

Although plagiarism is often thought to involve words and ideas, it can also involve drawings, paintings, photographs, programming code, statistics, presentations, musical scores, among other types of content. Even if the act of plagiarism was unintentional, you can still receive a penalty. To avoid plagiarism, keep good track of any outside sources you use, and ensure that you cite sources properly. For more help on how to avoid plagiarism, contact the Library, Writing Centre, or your instructor or TA.
