

AGING IN THE CITY

EngAGEing Ideas for Age-Friendly Communities

The “Aging in the City” series examines key issues for aging equity, including quality care and work in long-term care; the social determinants of health and aging; and thinking through issues related to aging, diversity and difference.

In partnership with Toronto Public Library. Co-sponsored by the York University School of Health Policy and Management, the York University Centre for Aging Care Research and Education (YU-CARE), Imagining Age-Friendly “Communities within Communities: International Promising Practices Partnership” and Trent Centre for Aging and Society.

OCTOBER 18, 2018 | 6–8pm

Beeton Hall Events Centre
Toronto Reference Library, Main Floor
789 Yonge Street, Toronto

RSVP by October 16, 2018:
go.yorku.ca/aging-in-city
agequity@yorku.ca
(416) 736-2100 x22237

Scan me

SPEAKERS

Get involved in the conversation! #sshrcfunded #YU-CARE #YorkU #TrentU #Aging #AgeFriendly

Dr. Susan Braedley

is an Associate Professor in the School of Social Work at Carleton University in Ottawa. Her research program compares health care and social policy approaches that address both urban population diversity and aging, to assess their potential to provide conditions of dignity and respect for older people, their families and others who provide care for seniors.

@SusanBraedley

Dr. Sally Chivers

is Director of the Trent Centre for Aging and Society as well as Full Professor of English and Gender & Women's Studies at Trent University. She is the author of The Silvering Screen: Old Age and Disability in Cinema (2011) and From Old Woman to Older Women: Contemporary Culture and Women's Narratives (2003), and the co-editor of Care Home Stories: Aging, Disability and Long-Term Residential Care (2017) and The Problem Body: Projecting Disability and Film (2010).

@Sally_Chivers

Dr. Tamara Daly

is a Professor in the School of Health Policy & Management and the graduate programs in Health Policy and Equity; Gender, Feminist and Women's Studies; and Critical Disability Studies at York University. She is the Director of the York University Centre for Aging Research and Education. Dr. Daly recently completed a CIHR Research Chair in Gender Work and Health (2013-2018). Dr. Daly directs the 7 year SSHRC Partnership (2018-2025) for Age-Friendly Communities within Communities studying international promising practices for seniors.

@prof_TamaraDaly

Dr. Rachel da Silva Gorman is an Associate Professor in the School of Health Policy & Management at York University. She is appointed as the Graduate Program Director for the Critical Disability Studies department at York University. Her scholarship highlights political economies of disability, Disability Arts and Culture movements, and understanding the social organization of disability in the context of global healthcare provisions.

Dr. Sean Hillier is a queer Indigenous scholar from the Qalipu Mi'kmaq First Nation with a research focus on how policy shapes and impacts access to health care for Indigenous Peoples in Canada. Currently, Sean is researching the funding implications of health care delivery in remote First Nations communities for people living with HIV/AIDS. Sean has served on Ryerson's Research Ethics Board, is currently a member of the Board of Directors at the AIDS Committee of Toronto (ACT), and he is the former Co-Chair of the Board of Directors of Pride Toronto and WorldPride 2014 Toronto.

@Sean_Hillier

This research was supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada.

Social Sciences and Humanities
Research Council of Canada

Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines du Canada

health

