AGING RESEARCH COLLABORATORY SEMINAR WITH DR. ANFAL ADAWI

An Analysis of the Impact of Retirement on Well- Being of the Aging Population in Canada

Dr. Anfal Adawi's research explores the influence of retirement on physical health, mental health, and overall well-being. Dr. Adawi utilizes the Canadian Longitudinal Study on Aging dataset, which tracks over 50,000 individuals for more than a decade. Through rigorous statistical analysis, Dr. Adawi investigates the effects of retirement on well-being. This study is not only about understanding these impacts but also about assessing potential policy interventions to improve health outcomes and quality of life for retirees post-retirement.

Dr. Adawi received her PhD in Health Economics from York University and is now currently an Assistant Professor in the Economics Department at the Lebanese American University Beirut, Lebanon.
